We are Iceland Seafood

It's about our heritage, the present and a commitment to the future.

Iceland Seafood International is a worldwide sales, processing, and marketing group that offers a variety of frozen, fresh, salted, and dried seafood and value-added seafood products.

Our history and heritage dates back to 1932 from three associations: the Union of Icelandic Fish Producers (SIF), founded in 1932; the Herring Board, founded in 1935; and the Seafood Division of Samband of Iceland, founded in 1957.

Our strong roots in the Icelandic seafood sector form the basis of our expertise and long-lasting relationships built on trust and reliability. Today, Iceland Seafood is a respected industry leader in supplying North Atlantic fish and seafood and a leading service provider in our markets.

We are one of Iceland's largest exporters of fish products and a key processor of high-quality seafood in the Spanish and Irish markets.

We serve all major seafood markets worldwide, where we have a depth of expertise and understanding to meet our customers' needs, combined with innovative, flexible solutions and strategic global distribution.

Sustainability at Iceland Seafood

We are continuously improving our sustainability work by adopting a systematic and comprehensive approach to it

We have strengthened our efforts towards increased sustainability and set ambitious yet realistic goals. To ensure the fulfilment of our goals we have implemented a new Sustainability Policy and a Supplier Code of Conduct. We started producing solar powered electricity at two of our sites and invested in a successful waste-, and wastewater treatment plant to upcycle organic waste and reclaim water. Our efforts in sustainability are linked with the United Nations Sustainability Development Goals. We believe that by aligning our business and sustainability strategy with the SDGs, we can be a part of the solution, resulting in long-lasting positive change.

Importance of ensuring food safety for generations to come

We have always recognized the need for managing fish stocks in a responsible way and we therefore promote and practice responsible sourcing of seafood and monitor the level of certified products within our value-chain.

We support a precautionary approach in our operations and ensure that products from illegal, unreported, and unregulated fisheries (IUU fishing) do not enter our value-chain.

Find out all about sustainability at Iceland Seafood in our dedicated site: sustainability.icelandseafood.com

FAO Code of Conduct

The purpose of 1995 FAO Code of Conduct is to set international standards of behaviour for responsible practices with a view to ensuring the effective conservation, management and development of living aquatic resources, with due respect for the ecosystem and biodiversity.

MSC

Each MSC certified fishery has been independently assessed on its specific impacts to wild fish populations and the ecosystems they're part of. All along the supply chain, from ocean to plate, MSC certified seafood is clearly labelled so it can be traced to a certified sustainable fishery.

We are The Home of Cod

In Iceland, cod is harvested with exceptional care from the pristine waters of the North Atlantic, ensuring a product of unrivalled texture, flavour, and quality. This method –steeped in both tradition and innovation– embodies Iceland's steadfast commitment to sustainability and excellence

When you choose Icelandic cod, you are not merely selecting a superior product but also supporting a nation at the forefront of eco-conscious innovation and responsible marine management. Strict regulations and careful handling ensure that every catch contributes to preserving our delicate ocean ecosystems.

Our dedication to sustainability is evident at every stage. The cod is sourced in harmony with nature's balance, and through expert collaboration and our in-house processing, we refine each catch to enhance its inherent qualities.

Salmon from Iceland, origin of quality

Farmed salmon in Iceland are raised with exceptional care. The farming methods are a testament to Iceland's commitment to sustainability and premium quality

The salmon is carefully treated, receiving the best conditions to thrive in nutrient-rich ocean waters or carefully controlled land-based environments. The approach ensures the fish grows healthy, strong, and flavorful, standing out in taste, texture, and quality far beyond the mass-produced alternatives.

When you choose Icelandic-farmed salmon, you're not just choosing exceptional quality but also supporting a nation that leads in eco-conscious innovation and environmental stewardship

Unmatched Flavour and Freshness

Our Argentine Red Shrimp is prized for its vibrant colour, tender texture, and rich flavours

Harvested from the pristine waters of the South Atlantic, this premium product is carefully processed to meet the highest standards, making it a favourite choice for distributors and seafood professionals worldwide

With a privileged location, Puerto Madryn excels as a fishing port thanks to its strategic location near rich South Atlantic fishing grounds, modern infrastructure, and commitment to quality and sustainability.
